

amendment and six claims have been cancelled, which together with cancelled claim 16 of the last amendment result in no additional fees due.

The base claim, claim 1 has been extensively amended to include the elements and components that make the system suitable for the particular accounting system defined. The amendment more particularly identifies the invention of this application and distinguishes the system from the reference of Molnar and the other art of record, relied on by the Examiner in his §103 rejection. The Molnar reference relates to an automated data transfer system using telephone systems and is not concerned with the special accounting system necessary for cellular phones. By this amendment the applicant avoids the issue whether inclusion of a programmed translation means is obvious for inclusion in the system of Molnar.

Claims 12-15 and 17-18 being deemed allowable, it is requested that the Examiner reexamine amended claim 1 and added claims 19-25 and find the application in condition for allowance.

Respectfully submitted,
